William Phipps, being brought up to the sea, applied himself so assiduously to that profession, that he commanded several different ships, He. was eminently skilled in the mathematics, and became the inventor of that curious machine the diving bell; by this admirable contrivance, in the year 1037, he was enabled to recover, from the wreck of; a Spanish galleon, an immense treasure, which had lain buried in deep water forty-four years, returned triumphantly to London, and divided it with the rest of the adventurers. a Being introduced to King James II; June 28th, of the same year, the honour of knighthood was conferred upon him: and he. was appointed to the government of the Massachusets, and thereia, continued during the remainder of his life. Dying February 18th, 1694, he was interred in the parish, church of St. Mary Woolnoth in London, where a neat marble monument, with suitable embellishments, and the representation of the above remarkable circumstance in basso relievo, together with the following inscription, was erected to his memory: Near this place is interred the body Of Sir William Phipps, Knight, who in the year 107, by his great industry, discovered among See Burkes Eurcpe. m Settlements, vol. ii p. 168, where it is said that he was a New-Lriffland-Man, of obscure birth and education, who having raised a sudden fortune by a lucky expedient, was knighted, and afterwards made governor of the Province. The rocks, near the banks of Bahama, on...
