Not illustrated. 1908 Excerpt: .conclusions drawn therefrom form the subject matter of this bulletin. This work has been deemed important for the reason that some of the conclusions usually accepted concerning soil temperature have not been satisfactory--have not seemed to accord with observed facts. Apparently these conclusions have been drawn, in part at least, from analogy, and in part without giving due weight to other physical factors involved. Working with facts rather than from analogy, and giving to various factors their proper values the general problem becomes clearer and the conclusions are in accord with the facts of soil behavior. JOS. A. JEFFERY, Soil Physicist. CONTENTS. Page.
